NEW PREVIEW 2021-22 8. FANTASY GUIDE

HART TROPHY WINNER CONNOR McDAVID

THE ESSENTIAL HOCKEY YEARBOOK

CENTERS

Leon Draisaitl, C/LW, Oilers: He enters his age 26 campaign as the probable No. 2 overall pick in most non-keeper drafts. How good would he be on a deep roster?

Nathan MacKinnon, C, Avalanche: Only injuries prevent him from being taken No. 1 overall in a lot of drafts (he has played 82 games three times in eight seasons).

Auston Matthews, C, Maple Leafs: He should be picked in the first round of virtually all non-keeper drafts this year (he is largely unavailable in keeper formats).

Connor McDavid, C, Oilers: Can McDavid reach the 150-point mark this season? To bet against him would be unwise. Draft him first overall for the win. Profit.

Brayden Point, C, Lightning: Now that he has his right-winger (Nikita Kucherov) back, there is no limit to his goal-scoring acumen. Could Point crack 50 goals?

BREAKTHROUGH

Anthony Cirelli, C, Lightning: He is in Infor a season of 20-plus goals and 50-plus points, which would be a first for him. Draft him expecting career totals.

Roope Hintz, C/LW, Stars: Assuming a full recovery from groin surgery, Hintz should be a central figure in the Dallas attack. What could he do when healthy?

Jesperi Kotkaniemi, C/LW, Canadiens:
There is too much talent to ignore here.
Kotkaniemi might become one of the best breakthrough players of 2021-22. Draft him late.
Alexandre Texier, C/LW, Blue Jackets: A third-year breakout is possible--although not assumed--for the 22-year-old Texier. It could all depend on new coach Brad Larsen.

Robert Thomas, C/RW, Blues: Last campaign figures to be a mere bump in the road to excellence for Thomas, who could approach 55-70 points if he stays healthy.

with more than 150 Fantasy Outlooks split by positions

> Slue Jackets: His eared in his first season with numbus. Domi needs a strong recovery from shoulder surgery in a contract year. Jack Eichel, C, Sabres: If it is all systems go then he is a fantasy stud; it all depends on his injury rehab and how quickly he can forget about 2020-21.

Yanni Gourde, C/RW, Kraken: He is unlikely to match his 2017-18 career totals (82 GP, 25-39-64), and his wonky shoulder is also an issue. Do not overrate him.

Evgeny Kuznetsov, C, Capitals: Only 29, he has plenty of time to turn things around. He is an obvious bounce-back candidate, but also risky business, in 2021-22.

Victor Rask, C/LW, Wild: Despite his bounce-back season in '20-21, Rask is not a recommendable fantasy option in all buy the deepest draft leagues. Beware.

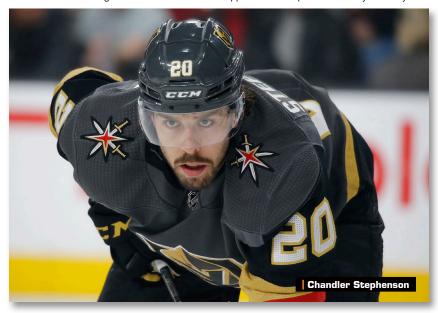

Sam Bennett, C/W, Panthers: His fantasy value has changed for the better but can he be trusted in '21-22? He might be drafted a bit too early in some leagues.

Patrice Bergeron, C, Bruins: At some point, Bergeron will start to slow down. His pointsper-game average regressed for the second season in a row in 2020-21.

Phillip Danault, C, Kings: His offense fell badly in a contract year in '20-21 but a return to 40-plus points may occur. He just does not score enough goals.

Jordan Staal, C, Hurricanes: His production rate was up last season, but he has not recorded 50-plus points since leaving Pittsburgh in 2012. Do not overrate. Chandler Stephenson, C, Golden Knights: Drafting him based on his 2020-21 role just may be a foolish decision this time around, so do not overrate him. Be judicious here.

TOP ROOKIES

- 1. Trevor Zegras, C/LW, Ducks: A top Calder candidate in 2021-22, Zegras is expected to step right into a feature role with the Ducks. His upside is exceptional.
- 2. Alex Newhook, C/W, Avalanche: He can be drafted in all league formats this year, but he has more value in keeper leagues. A season of 50-plus points is doable.
- 3. Connor McMichael, C/LW, Capitals: He may begin his NHL career on the wing but could eventually emerge as Washington's No. 1 center. He is an early keeper selection.
- 4. Jack Studnicka, C/RW, Bruins: He has a lot of appeal as a typical two-way forward but he may not become valuable in fantasy leagues immediately. Tread lightly.
- 5. Shane Pinto, C, Senators: Expectations are high for the ex-college star after his impressive late-season cameo last spring. Consider him a Calder prospect.

SLEEPERS

Jesper Bogvist, C/W, Devils: He is teetering on the depth chart as a solid player without a role. Boqvist owns a lot of upside; he is worth taking a chance on.

Morgan Geekie, C/RW, Kraken: He is probably a safer selection in keeper leagues this year, but draft him late in all formats and hope for the best in 2021-22.

Tyler Johnson, C/RW, Blackhawks: Expect him to see more minutes in 2021-22, so he might return to a 20-goal, 50-point form. Do not sleep on Johnson in many drafts.

Jack Roslovic, C/RW, Blue Jackets: His 2020-21 output projected to a 58-point pace over a full season. Comfortable now in his home state, he could easily surpass it. Colin White, C/RW, Senators: He is at a point in his career when an offensive breakthrough often occurs. However, White is less than a 50/50 proposition. Pass.

ON THE REBOUND

Nazem Kadri, C/LW, Avalanche: He went pointless for a stretch of 11 games in 2020-21! Kadri's production does seem to come in spurts, but his totals are decent.

Sean Monahan, C, Flames: He is just two seasons removed from a career year (78 GP, 34-48-82). Monahan is too young for his recent decline to be permanent.

Brayden Schenn, C/W, Blues: Expect Schenn to bounce back with numbers closer to his talent level this season. He remains a good mid-round draft option in '21.

Tyler Seguin, C/RW, Stars: Surgery rehab is behind him and he should reclaim a lead role in the Dallas offense. Can he still be counted on for 70-85 points?

John Tavares, C, Maple Leafs: He failed to reach 20 goals for the first time in his career last season but expect him to rebound in '21-22. There is value here.

ON THE RISE

Kirby Dach, C, Blackhawks: Patience is key as Dach makes up for time lost to wrist surgery. Gamble on his talent and hope he can stay healthy moving forward.

Jack Hughes, C/LW, Devils: Surrounding him with better talent will lead to a big fantasy payoff. Draft Hughes early. Keep him. His value is higher than most.

Josh Norris, C, Senators: He is the No. 1 center until a better one comes along, but a surefire No. 2 for the long haul. He should exceed his rookie marks.

Elias Pettersson, C, Canucks: Many a fantasy fortune swung on his injury last year. Fully recovered from a damaged wrist, he will continue his ascent in '21-22.

Nick Suzuki. C. Canadiens: He seems entrenched as Montreal's No. 1 center for years to come. Draft the 22-year-old relatively early, or else he will be gone.

Arguably Tampa Bay's top prospect, Barre-Boulet finally made his NHL debut last season. He took advantage of Nikita Kucherov's absence to produce three goals in a 15-game trial. He produced 12 more points in just 10 AHL contests and has absolutely nothing left to prove at lower levels. Barre-Boulet could graduate full time in '21-22.

The 36-year-old Bellemare has been to for contending clubs for some time now. three campaigns in Philadelphia, two with Vegas and two more in Colorado, the veteran Frenchman has landed with the two-time defending Cup champs in Tampa Bay. As fourth-line pivots go in the National Hockey League, there are few better than him.

The two-way forward is now entrenched behind Brayden Point as Tampa Bay's No. 2 center. His production was down during the 2021 regular season, but he saved his best performances for the playoffs. A cerebral player with a fair amount of grit, Cirelli should at some point enter into the Selke Trophy conversation-if he is not already.

The Lightning still managed to win the Stanley Cup, despite Killorn's absence for the final four games of the ultimate series against Montreal due to a lower-body injury. Killorn was a key member of the vaunted Lightning power play in 2020-21 because he usually paid a steep price in front of the net. The veteran winger can do it all.

The last time someone won three straight Stanley Cup rings was actually 16 members of the Islanders, their fourth straight in 1983. The No. 1 song on the Billboard Hot 100 chart was "Every Breath You Take" by The Police. The best box office movie was Star Wars' Return of the Jedi. In other words, that was a very long time ago. While Pat Maroon has the distinction of winning the last three Stanley Cup titles with two teams, Perry has now lost back-to-back finals to his new squad (Tampa Bay) with Dallas and Montreal, respectively. Despite the setbacks, the veteran winger has proven that he is not done making an impact at the highest level. He still has game.

The Lightning's scoring leader in the regular season ceded that title to returning linemate Nikita Kucherov in the playoffs. Point led all postseason goal scorers with 14 in 23 games last spring. However, he actually did not light the lamp at all in the final six games, after earlier tallying a goal in nine consecutive playoff games.

He has pretty much been a rock alongside Ryan McDonagh ever since the latter joined the Lightning in 2018. Cernak added more offense to his repertoire during the 2021 Stanley Cup playoffs, posting nine assists and 10 points in 21 games. There are very few shutdown defensemen in the league today who are better than the hulking Slovak.

It was announced following Tampa Bay's Stanley Cup championship that Hedman suffered a torn meniscus in his knee last March 30 in a game versus Columbus, but played through it and was forced to miss only two games! If the Swedish superstar defenseman can total 45 points in 54 games on a bum knee, what happens when he is fully healthy?

His performance in the '21 postseason was simply sensational (and a major reason why Tampa Bay was able to repeat as Stanley Cup champions). McDonagh registered an amazing plus-18 rating in 23 playoff contests, while also accumulating eight assists. During regular-season play, the veteran blueliner led the Lightning in blocked shots.

It is hard to quarrel with his glossy wonlost record (65-38-14) over four years with Philly, but the underlying numbers tell a different story. He posted his second straight sub-.900 save percentage in '20-21, while sharing the net in a supporting role. It was a bad year for Philly's 'keepers, with no shortage of blame to go around.

The big Russian netminder certainly seems destined for the Hall of Fame at the rate he is going. Now 27, Vasilevskiy boasts 190 career NHL wins and 26 shutouts in 302 games, plus two Stanley Cup rings, a Conn Smythe Trophy, a Vezina Trophy and lots of gas left in the tank. The NHL community is witnessing something truly special here.
